

EGOS Book Award

– Announcement –

Dear EGOSians,

I am delighted to share with you that the EGOS Board has established an EGOS Book Award, to be inaugurated at the 33rd EGOS Colloquium in Copenhagen, July 2017. The new award seeks to celebrate the linguistic diversity of scholarship in the field of organization studies performed with the depth and richness of detail afforded by a monograph.

This award will be granted annually to an authored book (no edited volumes or textbooks qualify), published in the three previous years (for 2017: books published in 2014, 2015, and 2016) in a language spoken by EGOSians, which makes an original contribution to the knowledge about organizations, organizing, and the organized.

A nomination for a book can be made by any active EGOS member with fluency in the language, in which the nominated book is written. Self-nominations by the author(s) will not be accepted.

The nomination for the 2017 EGOS Book Award should consist of a book appraisal in English of up to two pages in length, and should be submitted by February 28, 2017 via email to the EGOS Executive Secretariat (secretariat@egosnet.eu), noting “EGOS Book Award” in the email’s heading.

In addition to these nominations, to ensure a range of books for the selection, the EGOS Board will delegate a selected number of EGOSians as ‘book scouts’ in different languages who will be asked to nominate books.

The award committee is chaired by a representative from the EGOS Board and includes EGOSians who are renowned authors of academic books. The committee will establish a procedure for evaluating the nominations, assign two evaluators to the shortlisted books with fluency in the book’s language, and finally select the winner.

The award will be presented during the EGOS Colloquium’s Award Ceremony and attracts a prize of EUR 2,000. The winning book will be reviewed in the journal Organization Studies, and featured, together with all shortlisted books, on the EGOS website.

We look forward to receiving your nominations and to celebrating the books that we, as EGOSians, find influential for our field!
