PhD in Business Administration

The PhD in Business Administration at Grenoble Ecole de Management aims to educate scholars who will become faculty members in leading international business schools or universities. This three to four year full-time program is designed to ensure that students are involved in research very early on and develop a solid publication record during their PhD studies.

The PhD offers extensive training in up-to-date methods and theories in English. Formal training is supplemented by regular research seminars, in which leading experts from Grenoble Ecole de Management and other universities present and discuss their latest research results. The PhD dissertation consists of three independent but related academic papers, which are submitted to – and sometimes already published in – leading academic journals. This ensures that our graduates receive the best possible preparation for their future careers in academia.

For the program commencing in September 2017, GEM is offering up to eight (8) PhD positions. These positions are fully funded thanks to tuition waivers and assistantships. We also offer generous support for PhD student attendance at conferences.

We invite applications from aspiring researchers in the fields of Management, Marketing, Finance and related subjects with excellent academic credentials and a working knowledge of the English language. Potential candidates are invited to visit our research groups pages to envision possible synergies between our professors' and their research interests. Prior coursework in business administration is however not mandatory for this program.

Through our good relationships with French public universities, interested PhD students have the possibility to register for the Doctorat d'Etat with one of our partners and receive a doctoral degree recognized by the French government.
